

TV show: Petrocollapse and Socioeconomic Meltdown Scenarios

Contributed by Culture Change
12 January 2009

TV show: Petrocollapse scenarios with oil-industry analyst Jan Lundberg and other peak oilers and community activists in Portland, Oregon.

On January 10 the long-running public affairs television show TV Set did a one-hour talk show about collapse -- energy and socioeconomic. The program was advertised as "A well-considered discussion of scenarios that may occur post Peak Oil, offering visions of our future."

Click to Play

Watch this in-depth program online at blip.tv or m3houseorg.blip.tv

Or, if you're in Portland and can get cable TV, tune in on January 15, 2009, 3 PM on Channel 23, or on January 20, 11 PM on a different Channel, 22.

Guests besides Jan Lundberg were:

Mark Lakeman (City Repair), Jerry Erwin (disaster consultant/military intelligence officer), Per Fagereng (KBOO radio show host), Bruno Amicci (Red Cross), Deb Delman (Pangaea Project), John Kellerman (musician), Tod Sloan (psychologist, Lewis and Clark College), and host Jim Wrathall. Co-host Jeff Gerritsen was out of state.

TV Set has been "Aiding and abetting the progressive community since 1991." Thanks to Portland Community Media and m3house.org's Micah Perry and Melinda Fleming. Do you have such TV programs on the air in your community? If not, do it!