Energy Decline

Contributed by Anna Semlyen 8 October 2005
Poetry from the British Isles about peak oil
My aim is not to scare you
But to prepare you
As energy declines
There'll be less
Of what's mine
Because its fair
To share
When less
And less
s there
As energy shrinks
Ve are on the brink
Of a new world order
Fhat's much harder
Every family
Must conserve energy
And what's doable
s more renewables

https://www.culturechange.org/cms Powered by Joomla! Generated: 21 August, 2025, 11:38

Rationing's
The best thing
For oil supplies
That's what's wise
Yet the market will decide
And prices sharply rise
Me, me, me
Must give way to
We, we, we
Or there'll be Hungry
Savagery
Clean water's
What we ought to Sort
Together
If we're to weather
This mighty storm
In any civilised form

https://www.culturechange.org/cms Powered by Joomla! Generated: 21 August, 2025, 11:38

With a shrinking pie
My mind's eye
Predicts collapse
But perhaps Education
Consideration
Of the issues
Will stop the misuse
Of remaining petrol
Before a mighty cull
A mass die off
While politicians cry off
Tackling the problem
Of dwindling petroleum
Sad but true
Now what are you Going to do?
25 Oct. 2005

https://www.culturechange.org/cms Powered by Joomla! Generated: 21 August, 2025, 11:38

Anna Semlyen is the author of Cutting Your Car Use (www.cuttingyourcaruse.co.uk)			